THE REMEL RETREAT.

The rebels retreated in bot haste before the two brigades of General Crocker's division. Our Generals thought they had fallen back to a better position, and made every preparation for another sitack upon them. The two divisions of McPherson's corps followed them up closely is the of battle, expecting every moment to hear from them as a account standpoint. But, while we thought they were forming for another struggle, they were making the best of their way out of Jackson, on the road isading to Carton, Mississippi. This proposition was promptly negatived by Grant, and he reliterated his already historical answer promnigated on a former occasion, under somewhat similar circumstances, "Tell your General that I demand and will only accept an ameonational surrender of his entire force. I shall immediately proceed to move upon his works," Thus has this General again well and fairly earned the appellation given him by his soldiers of "Unconditional Surrender Grant."

Should this story prove unfounded, as most rebel stories do prove, it is certainly good enough to be true, and Grant is just the man to make such a response to such a demand on the part of an insolent but cowering foe.

From the statement of this prisoner, it is fair to presume that it would take Grant some days to consummate the capture of Vicksburg.

Penned in as they were, the rebels would fight with desperation.

But there is no doubt of the final result. We have only to wait our time. Vicksburg must soon be ours.

Mississippi, but to take permanent posses-sion of the whole country, and establish themselves there as they have done in north-ern Tennessee and Kentucky, the full of Vicksburg could with difficulty be presented. Isolated in the midst of territory possessed by the enemy, its reduction by blockade would be but a question of time. But Grant's army is not an army of conquest, still less, of occupation. His advance on Jackson, how-ever intended, has been converted into a very

In the momens of danger, however, Gen. Johnston was ordered to go there and take command of that army. Whether he will be able to retrieve all the loases which have been suffered by the Confederates remains to be seen; but we have little reason to fear the loss of the State of Mississippi, and consequent fall of Vicksburg, while he can keep the field there.

My Dear Father Edward. The rebels grabbed the last letter I wrote you, but they will draw very little consolation from its contents.

I can happy to see the splendid stand you took in the Telgraph against slavery, with its horrors, barbarities and base immoralities. Slavery is dead. Nothing can respectate it. To learn this fact fully, you should pay as a visit. There is not an experience of the fourth who does not know he is free. Around here they have squatted on the plantations, and refuse to work for any one but themselves. They have sown little crops of their own, and the masters have coased to exercise any control over them.

Spirits is the Furniture Business.
All our readers are familiar with the painful case of Mrs. Burgett, the fashlonable boarding-house keeper, whose thiering propentities caused her arrest and incarceration in the jail, where she now awaits trial. It has been herefolore mentioned that her house was elegantly furnished. Her husband, it will be remembered, is an invalid, far gone with consumption. A few daysage word was conveyed to Mrs. Burgett that a "circle" of spiritualists had spirited her husband away, and having converted him into a spiritualist, had also converted to their own use the furniture of Mrs. Bergett's house. Shertif Hammond accompanied Mrs. Burgett to the place where these impudent things were said to have been accomplished, and to her surprise succrtained that it was indeed a fact. Her furniture was, decorating a strange house; her pictures heing apon wells around which mysterious noises, rappings, etc., were heard; her expets had been cut and laid upon floors strangely in contrast with those of her own spacious house. The husband was in an upper room, confined to his bed, and evidently in the last stages of consumption. The "circle," male and female, endeavored to prevent Mrs. Burgett from useing him, but she forced her way to his bedside. He was too far gene to recognize her.

It strikes us that a well regulated Labraden iceberg is everal degrees warmer than the above proceeding. It is a decidedly refreshing munner of spiriting things away, and if the doctrines of spiritualism be true, and this household removal was caused by the agencies of immaterial ghosts, there must be in some of the spheres, spirits fearfully addicted to the same practices for which Mrs. Burgett is now confined in jail; and if there be in those spheres a Recorder's Court we cubmit these incorporeal specimens as proper subjects for trial and a long term? In some ethereal penitentiary. We have sad misgiving, however. The affulr has a very carnal aspect about it, an

The Musical Union Concert;
The fourth of the series of Musical Union
Concerts, occurs this evening at Bryan Hall.
The programme is miscellaneous in character, Concerts, occurs this svening at Bryan Hall. The programme is miscellaneous in character, but has been selected with great care and will please every lover of good music. Mrs. Matteson sings "in queste semplies," from Donna Carl's and the "Beggar Girl." Miss Main will sing Kucken's "Tears," and an operatic aria. Lewis will play Ernsi's "Elegy," and Miss De Peleroin is set down for one or two plano solos, which, of course, will be well done. The Society will sing selections from Mendelssolin's four parts, and "Worthy is the Lamb," from the Messiah. With such a programme, a full house is a certainty. As the season is rapidly drawing to a close, we advise the concert goers not to lose this concert.

The Provision market was more active, but there is no change to note in prices. A lot of 100 bits heavy country Mess Pock was not at $12.75, and a small lot of outside city Mess at $12.50. In bulk Mesta, we report sales of shoulders loose; and de for Short Rib Middles, loose. A small lot of Bacon Rams and Shoulders loose, and all the salt of Bacon Rams and Shoulders was sold at $1% and $1%.—country cut. Lard was quiet, with sales at be. The demand for prime Leaf is fair, but the offerings are light.

The present wind has brought in a very large fact of lumber vessels, and the Lumber market is glutted and dull.

Fleece wools have sold all the way from 65 to 800, but the bulk of the transactions have been between 60 and 800. The stocks of domestic wool, as usual at this scasson, are light, but of foreign there is a large stock, especially of Cape and fine Meeticas. The sales have been mostly of domestic, for minufacturing purposes. A few transactions have taken the stock of the sales of the first stock of the fir

BOGUS NEWS-HOW MADE.
Some bright chap at Padneah sent a dispatch through to the St. Louis Evening News, yeaterday, vic Cairo, saying with certain gratifying particulars, that Vicksburg had been taken. The contents of this having transpired at Cairo, a gentleman connected with the III. Cent R. R. Do, sent the news to Mr. Osborne, President of the Company in this city; and he kindly communicated at to this office, in person. Soon afterwards, a bulletin appeared at our counting-room window.
